

Commons Energy

Saving Energy,
Strengthening
Communities

What if you could use a third less energy and have more money to serve your mission?

Commons Energy

We help improve the comfort, safety, and efficiency of public-purpose buildings by lowering overhead costs and creating positive cash flow.

A model that benefits all

Commons Energy, a public-purpose energy services company (or PPESCO), is an innovative take on a tested model, using financing from mission-aligned sources to finance the project. The client repays investors from resulting energy savings.

Your energy reduction is guaranteed.

Who we serve

Municipalities

Health care

Education

Affordable multifamily housing

Commons Energy
Saving Energy,
Strengthening
Communities

Don't let utility bills distract you from your mission.

Too often, the operations and management of your buildings can become a drain on much-needed resources that could and should be used toward the very purposes they were built to serve, whether it's healthcare, education, housing, or municipal services.

That's where Commons Energy comes in.

We make major energy improvements in public-purpose buildings.

We're with you every step of the way

From finding your opportunities, to installing your equipment, to making sure it saves you energy.

Our turn-key approach provides:

Resulting in

Lower energy use and maintenance costs.

Immediate, positive cash flow

Increased comfort and affordability long-term

Commons Energy
Saving Energy,
Strengthening
Communities

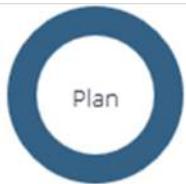

Here's how it works

We start by meeting with you to discuss the challenges of your buildings and your goals for energy savings

Your buildings are assessed for energy and water savings potential, and then we manage the contractor selection and installation for you.

We provide access to project financing so that both investors and building owners will get financial returns right away.

The work is completed, with oversight from Commons Energy. Those who live, work, or visit the building experience improved comfort and safety. Building owners and managers obtain immediate energy savings.

Commons Energy
Saving Energy,
Strengthening
Communities